Composite Ball Valve (6" and 4") for Naval application

Use of polymer matrix composites for secondary naval items such as valves, pipes is increasing in our naval vessels due to weight, cost and signature reduction. A large number of flow control valves of different types and size are used inside the marine vessels. One of the common types of valve is ball valve. These valves in marine vessels are conventionally made of metals and alloys such as bronze, aluminum-bronze. To address the corrosion issue of metallic valves, DRDO has developed 4" and 6 " composite valves which can be used as a substitute of metallic valves presently being used in naval ships and submarines. All the laboratory testing including hydrostatic, shock and vibration testing as per naval standard were successfully completed. The fitment and performance trial of 6 inch ball valves also completed successfully at 4 bar hydrostatic pressure under continuous operation at Naval Dockyard, Mumbai and certificate was issued by Indian Navy.

Salient Features:

Standard Dimension • 6" and 4" (ID)

Weight

• 48 kg for 6" and 36 kg for 4"

Construction

• Chopped carbon and Glass fiber based FRP composite for ball and body and Hastelloy for Stem and nut and bolts

(a) 6" Composite ball valve (b) 4" Composite ball valve

Properties:

- Superior corrosion resistance
- >60% weight saving compared to metallic valve
- Excellent strength to weight ratio
- Low thermal conductivity
- Long service life
- Easy installation and maintenance
- Resistance to marine organisms

Applications: Ship, Submarines, Fire fighting lines and other marine platforms

 Min. Facility/Capability required at the time of submission: Compression moulding using dough moulding compound (DMC)
