

“Piezoceramic Micro-Spherical Transducer Elements”

Systems utilizing mechanical pressure waves are popular for underwater applications. PZT based piezoelectric materials are excellent underwater electro-mechanical energy converters. Hence PZT based piezoelectric materials form the heart of any kind of underwater transducer system. Obtaining high resolution underwater image is achievable at higher frequencies which demand size miniaturization of the piezo-components. Piezoceramic hollow spherical micro-transducer elements are required for development of high frequency (> 300 kHz) hydrophone for underwater transducer applications. ToT will comprise of method to manufacture sensitive electro-ceramic viz, PNS-PZT composition and fabricating micro-spherical transducers out of that.
